Dear Richard,

In writing Mailer's Tales, of the JFK Assassination I've finished the draft of two chapters that are particularly devastating to that unconscionable pair of necrophiliacs over the ^{un}unconscionable fabrications of abuse of Marina Oswald.

What they sunk to is really beyond belief, as it is that Random House's lawyer approved it, the evil intent and the malice are that apparent.

These two chapters have no significant mention of the assassination. That leads me to the belief that some magazine might not be deterred by that hangup. One not part of the Neuhouse empire, anyway. Or perhaps in competition with it.

This makes a complete ^{legitimate} natural promotion for NEVER AGAIN!

Lil's typing is not what it was but then neither of us ^{is} either. She is starting to retype these ^{two} chapters.

When she finishes that will be cleaner than the best I can do.

Will you please let me know if this interests you?

What I actually believe is that Mailer is ripe for a long overdue fall and that he is not really rational.

His is a ~~crazy~~ book in which he does crazy things in a crazy way.

At its infrequent best ~~Ma claz~~ Oswald's Tale is really Oswald Stale.

Best,

Harold
